Hanover College senior Riggles dies

BY THE COURIER STAFF
The Hanover College community is in mourning this week after the sudden death of senior Lexi Riggles last weekend. Riggles, a senior from Danville, Indiana, and a member of the women's basketball team, died unexpectedly on Sunday. Her death is under investigation and the cause is pending results of an autopsy. However, the Jefferson County Coroner's Office said no foul play is expected. Words of condolences have come from all corners of the sports community as news of Riggles' death spread. The women's basketball team, which took a day off to mourn, was back at work on Tuesday getting ready for the season in her name. "I think the word I've used a lot is 'numb,'" Hanover women's coach John Jones told Rob Connett of WIBC Radio in Indianapolis. "There's not a manual for this, obviously. They don't train you in school on how to deal with this. I've been coaching since 1991. This is the first tragic accident that's been this close to a team that I've dealt with. I'm just trying to be strong for the players, the (Riggles) family, and my family as well, as they were all close to Lexi." Riggles was a 2018 graduate of Danville Community High School and has been a member of the Hanover women's basketball team for four years. She appeared in 13 games as a junior for the Panthers last season, averaging 5.5 points per game. She was a business and communications major. But Riggles' value to the team went far beyond the basketball court. An active member of the Hanover College community and the Chi Omega sorority, she was well-known across campus. "Everybody loved her," Jones said. "She was there for everybody else. She wanted to make sure that she was there if somebody needed something at any time of day or night." The college has already made plans to honor Riggles — including the football team adding stickers to their helmets — and women's basketball teams across the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference have sent heartfelt messages of support to the Panthers through Twitter. On Friday, the Danville High School student was to honor and remember Riggles by holding a "Hippie Night," a thought that made Jones smile. "I laughed so hard at that," Jones said. "She was a free spirit, she loved her different types of music, she had an artistic touch. So, I think that's a great way to honor her on Friday night." Visitation and services for Riggles are Sunday from Noon to 4 p.m. at the Danville Community High School gymnasium. Her obituary is on Page A3.

Savings for the jail as construction moves forward

Barnes & Thornburg to review county ARP spending plans

BY BOB DEMAREE
Building a new county jail is a costly venture but the Jefferson County Commissioners approved a credit of $451,979 at Thursday's meeting after some cost savings were identified in the project. "At one time there was a specification for a security ceiling in day rooms but those have been removed," said David Bramer, president of the Commissioners.

That change alone resulted in a savings of $84,000. Bramer added that a video analysis content platform was deleted for an additional savings of $73,000 while eliminating a high-polished finish toilet skirt reduced the project by another $18,600. The biggest item removed was a glass variance approved by the state to eliminate a security glass that would have cost $276,379. Bramer said the change came after expensive security glass initially included in the project was later determined unnecessary.

Southwestern schools adopt $15M budget for 2022

BY BOB DEMAREE

A $15,080,321 budget for 2022 was adopted by the Southwestern School Corporation board at its meeting Thursday.

The budget, which will now be sent to the Department of Local Government Finance for review, included $10,495,800 in the Education Fund, $696,421 for Debt Services, $3,788,100 for the Operations Fund, and $100,000 for the Rainy Day Fund.

Southwestern advertised tax rates of 0.2545 for the debt service, 1.0688 for the operations fund and 0.068 for retirement bonds for a total tax rate of 1.3233.

Additionally, Superintendent Jeffrey Bates said a tentative agreement was made Wednesday with the Southwestern Teachers Association with teachers voting Monday on the contract.

“That process went pretty smoothly. What we ended up with was a pretty good contract for our teachers,” Bates said, noting if the teachers vote to approve the contract, the board will ratify the agreement at a meeting that will likely occur in the second week of November.

In other business:

- Awarded the contract for replacing the HVAC in the maintenance building to Terry’s Heating and Cooling, Madison, at a cost of $6,000. A quote was also received from Circle R Mechanical, Columbus, for $7,212.66. Laura Cash Boldery, assistant to the Superintendent, noted there currently is no heat in the maintenance building.

- Awarded a contract for pool cleaning to PuroClean Home Emergency Services of Madison for $5,649. Boldery said a quote was also received from SERV-PRO for $2,310.61, but Maintenance Director Roger Bickers requested PuroClean because it will do a more thorough cleaning that extends up the walls from the floor to the ceiling. The pool is currently waiting parts for repair, which Bates anticipates will arrive by Nov. 4, and once installation is completed, the pool will be cleaned.

To Our Families and Friends,

Finding the words to describe what our hearts are feeling is impossible. We are absolutely devastated with the loss of Dennis and trying our best to get through each day.

We are so overwhelmed by the outpouring of love and support from everyone. Dennis would be so touched and humbled! Whether it be a text, a card, phone call, food brought to us, paper supplies, drinks, groceries, whole dinner meals, flowers, trees, gifts, money, came for visitation or the service, a kind word or two, a hug, or just to sit with us and cry, we’ve appreciated it all!!

There are so many to thank for helping us along this dark road. The ER crew at KDH. Brynen Chitwood, Rodney Nay and his staff were again wonderful. Our “4-H families” who set up the wonderful meal (those who donated to it), and the drive-thru and those who came to say goodbye. As we passed by the Kent United Methodist Church, where Dennis was a member, the bell ringing, thank you Corey.

We are so blessed with our awesome friends and family. We will never forget the love, kindness, and sympathy you have given us all!!

WITH ALL OF OUR HEART, WE THANK YOU!!!

Love never dies

Dear Readers: Thank you for your heartfelt and humbling responses to Second Wife, who is bothered that her second husband continues to carry a photo of his late wife in his billfold. These serve as an important reminder that though loved ones die, our love for them doesn't.

Dear Annie: After 20-plus years of marriage, my now-husband and I both lost our first spouses. We had long and wonderful marriages before they were both cut short by cancer.

When my now-husband and I married, we embraced our first spouses into our marriage. It's a marriage of four people, not just two. They were a part of who we were then and the people we are now. Their pictures are as important a part of our home as the pictures of his two daughters, my daughter and our grandchild.

We still talk about them, remember the good times and share stories. We take flowers to the cemetery on their birthdays and "death days." We love them just as much today as we did 20 years ago.

My now-husband and I just celebrated our 22nd anniversary. So my advice to Second Wife is to embrace the first spouse, share stories and add your pic in his wallet. Perhaps opening up to one another — sharing stories about your first spouses — will enrich your current marriage, as it has for me and my now-husband. — With Open Arms

Dear Annie: I, too, lost my wife, and I can tell you she will always be part of my life. I completely disagree that he should bury the past. Losing a spouse is like losing part of yourself. I believe that it is possible to find new love, but that new love is an addition, not a replacement.

I think Second Wife needs to understand that her husband can love and be devoted to her but that his lost wife will always be part of who he is. — Still Grieving

Dear Annie: In regards to your response to Second Wife, I have a different take on the situation.

I had been widowed for five years when I remarried and moved into my second husband's home. He had a wall of family pictures (kids, parents and grandparents), and there was one picture of his ex-wife and their children.

Before we were married, he told me who was in each picture. When he came to that picture, he said, "It's not there because I still love her, but because it is part of my and my children's lives."

After we married, he rummaged through my things until he found a picture of my late husband. He then went and put that picture on the wall because it was part of my life. When people come over and ask about the pictures, he always tells them that is my late husband.

We loved each other dearly, and they are only pictures. — Grieving with Grace

Family is where you are

Dear Annie: I identified with the military family who was expected to go to their parents' homes for the holidays. It could have been written by me years ago. We played that game out of a sense of duty when we were first married. It was expected, and we obliged, even though we didn't want to. My husband is closer to my family than he is to his own. He was in the military for 22 years, and we learned something about ourselves. We did not need a big, huge family gathering to make holidays special; we found our family in the military.

Military friends become your family. We shared many holidays with sailors who did not have family around and didn't go home. We learned that this was really what was important — sharing with others. Thankfully, we discovered later, after my husband retired, that we were very lucky not to live near his family. My mom would come and visit us, and we even took her on vacations to the East Coast with us. Years later, those trips were her most treasured memories.

My husband's family made absolutely no effort to get anywhere near us, even when we were stationed five hours from them. We were expected to go see them. My advice from a military wife is to learn a very valuable lesson: Your family is where you are, and if others want to join you, wonderful. But make your own memories for your family. And, most importantly, do not feel even one bit of guilt. — Retired Navy in Washington State

Dear Retired Navy: You are right that family is where you are and that sharing with people who appreciate it is very rewarding. Thank you for sharing your experiences and observations. Dear Annie: My husband has control issues. He is aware that he has them, and he really tries hard to keep them in check. We are finally at a place in our marriage where I can make decisions about our home, such as interior decorating and small remodeling jobs, and act on them, and it feels wonderful! I have a design and merchandising degree, and I am the one who manages the home while he works in an office most days, so it makes sense to both of us for me to be "in charge" of these things. I do small projects maybe two or three times a year. These are not expensive or overwhelming. However, he gets super grumpy, testy and short-tempered when I'm planning and executing a change — ANY change! I am good at keeping to our budget, and he has always liked the changes I've made once they're finished.

What can I say to him to remind him (kindly) that we have both agreed to let me go with my design choices and that he should try to at least be nice during the process? — Tired of Mr. Control

Dear Tired: The good news is that you are both aware of his control issues. Next time he starts to get grumpy or short-tempered, call him out on it. Try calmly talking to him about his behavior and how his words are making you feel. There's always the chance that he doesn't realize that his knee-jerk complaints about anything new are really wearing you down, and he might be willing to change.

Bramer said although the projected cuts were originally included in architectural plans, the Commissioners had to question "do we really need that" as they considered ways save money on, which the county's building corporation has been authorized to borrow up to $45 million.

Bramer also gave an update in progress by construction crews on the Jefferson County Sheriff's Office and Criminal Justice Center, which is due to be completed in 2023. He said construction currently involves the medical intake side of the jail but that foundations for the inmate housing also have been completed.

"They're still moving along," he said.

In other business, the Commissioners:

- Discussed a proposal from Barnes and Thornburg LLP, to review the county's plans for American Rescue Plan funds, as approved by the Commissioners at a cost of $2,500 per month.

Bramer had sought Barnes and Thornburg to do the review of the county's plans for the $6.2 million in ARP funds the county is receiving. The firm has previously assisted the county in evaluating CARES Act funding that the county has received.

He said Barnes and Thornburg "will be able to help us once we put together our plan to identify those things that are things that are appropriate and legal, and those things that aren't." He noted the legal review is "worth it based on the questions we've had raised about the legality of using the funds in certain ways. This should prevent us from having any issues in that way" because Barnes and Thornburg has dealt with other municipalities on similar issues.

Commissioner Bobby Little said the review "will keep us from possibly having to make reimbursements on projects that we deemed (appropriate) and they don't."

Bramer agreed, noting he hopes to avoid "sending money to someone, then having to reimburse the federal government for it. We felt that was a good insurance policy."

During the summer, the Commissioners announced proposed plans for $3.1 million of the ARP funding, the first half of the $6.2 million total, and Bramer said they have begun discussing possibilities for the second half. A joint meeting with the County Council and Commissioners is planned for Nov. 9 for the two boards to discuss allocation of the county's ARP funds.

- County Highway Superintendent Bobby Phillips updated the department's process for maintaining county roads and extending their life as long as possible. "I have been going back and reviewing all our chip seals to be sure they're performing the way we want and expecting, and that is all looking very good" he said.

Phillips said fog seal was used on Shun Pike, Papermill Road, 700 North and a section of Interstate Block. Fog seal is an asphalt additive that is applied to newer asphalt surfaces to extend their life.

Phillips said he continues to review products and technologies to extend the life of the county's roads, and he's starting to use some newer products to see how well they perform.

"The name of the game is extending the life of the roads," said Bramer. "If a relatively inexpensive way will do that, then it makes sense to use it."

"When you can treat the road for pennies on the square yard versus paying the road for $15 per square yard" it makes sense, said Phillips.

- Troy Morgan, director of the Jefferson County Emergency Management Agency, presented a letter of commendation to Matt True, the agency's chief of operations and lead drone pilot — both volunteer positions. In particular, Morgan commended True for his efforts toward the EMA receiving a $20,701 grant from the Community Foundation of Madison and Jefferson to upgrade the county's small unmanned aerial system (sUAS) program with new infrared technology. He said the upgrade will allow the county to fulfill requests for service after sundown and overnight that had previously been denied to the inability to use drones after dark.

"I commend Matt for his time, his passion and his commitment to excellence in emergency management," Morgan wrote in the letter. "Jefferson County owes him a debt of gratitude for his efforts with this project and his daily contributions alike. It is a privilege to serve with him."

True explained that the new infrared drones not only expand use to nighttime but link to county GIS information to provide more accurate maps and better service. "Our intention to be able to 3D model while the event is going on," True said. "It's crazy technology but we can measure things down to centimeters."

The new technology for small unmanned aerial systems could also benefit the County Surveyor for planning and zoning or the County Assessor for assessments, said Morgan.

- Morgan provided an updated on the Hazard Mitigation Plan, which is due for an update for the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

Morgan said FEMA will provide $25,943 in grant money at a 75% to 25% match — state funds received being $19,457 with the county's match $6,486 — for the update. The county's match can be in-kind, so time, materials, facility use and other expenses related to executing the plan qualify.

Morgan said in the past the county has used the Polis Center of Indianapolis to assist, but because of changing methodology he is proposing that Christopher B. Burke Engineering of Indianapolis be retained.

The Commissioners took the proposal under advisement to be reviewed by the county attorney.

- Approved limited use agreements for the county's GIS information through WTH Technology Inc. One is for the GIS data to be used for the iWorQ Systems software in the County Surveyor's office. The other is for Schmidt Associates, which is doing a trail study for Hanover College to be submitted through the Regional Economic Acceleration and Development Initiative to develop a trail between Hanover and Madison.

Inflation Can Be A Terrible Retirement Partner

Layin It On The Line

By Stephen Dybwad
Retirement Planning/
Wealth Management

Warren Buffet once pointed out that when you do the math, it is obvious that inflation is far more destructive to wealth than any tax levied on us by the government." Steve Dybwad

It probably hasn't escaped your notice that consumer prices have gone rogue in 2021. Prices for goods and services are surging at the fastest pace in over ten years, threatening to squeeze households and squelch a potential post-COVID economic recovery. Economists, bankers, and pundits insist that inflation rates reflect pandemic-induced trends and are only temporary. However, many retirees, pre-retirees, and investors are concerned that prices will keep going up, stalling economic growth and causing stocks to plummet. If you are a certain age, you might remember the double-digit inflation of the 1960s and 70s, which reached its' apex during the Jimmy Carter Administration. Like all inflation, the price hikes were due to several factors, including an oil crisis in the Middle East, excessive government spending, and a slow-acting Federal Reserve. Inflation is the silent thief of retiree wealth.

Unfortunately, it is impossible to know if our current rising prices are temporary or a sign of things to come. Yet, many economists believe that the diversified, globally integrated US economy is big enough and robust enough to avoid the hyperinflation found in countries such as Zimbabwe.

Still, if you are about to retire, you should maintain vigilance when it comes to inflation. Even if increased inflation lasts only a few years, it can wipe out a significant part of your retirement savings. An annual inflation rate of just 3% seems insignificant. However, at a 3% rate, if you currently have monthly expenses of $4,000, they will be $5,000 a month in just ten years. For this reason, it is critical for those within ten years of retirement to review their plans and adjust for worst-case scenario inflation levels.

Many people fail to realize just how significant the impact of inflation is on their savings. For example, if you own an asset that is bringing in 4% returns with no income tax, and the annual inflation rate is also 4%, that scenario is equivalent to a 100% tax in a time where inflation is at ZERO! If the inflation rate were to go to 5%, and your asset will still making only 4%, you would be paying a tax equivalent to 125%.

Bake inflation protection into your financial blueprint Inflation is a stealth tax that, although it doesn't go entirely unnoticed, is not as in-your-face as government-levied taxes. Government tax increases, such as those on income or property, are more readily identified and felt. On the other hand, inflation is like bleeding to death from a thousand tiny pinpricks rather than one gaping wound. Inflation expresses itself as a few cents more for a loaf of bread, a five-cent price increase on coffee, and so forth. Inflation leaves you scratching your head, wondering how your paycheck could vanish so rapidly.

Retirees and those leaving the workforce must partner with their advisors to put some armor around their wealth in a few years. Your savings must be protected as much as possible, or you risk running out of money when you need it most. Your advisor or advisory team may recommend various strategies using things such as certain types of annuities, cash-flowing investments, or even precious metals or cyber currencies.

Depending on your goals and risk tolerance, alternate investment strategies can form a protective barrier against erosive elements, including inflation, sequence of returns risk, and other attacks on your wealth.

The bottom line is: Like an unwelcome house guest, it's bound to show up when you least expect it, and it will outstay its welcome nearly every time.

Don't forget to plan for inflation.

Eminence sweeps Trimble to win 31st District crown

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

OWENTON, Ky. — Eminence’s powerful hitting proved to be the difference as the Warriors rolled over Trimble County in three sets to win the 31st District Volleyball Championship Wednesday at Owen County High School.

Eminence’s Megan Sweeney dominated the net all night, hammering 21 kills over the three sets as the Warriors picked up the 25-17, 25-13, 25-17 victory. But Sweeney wasn’t the only Eminence hitter who had success as frontline mate Abby Ruzanka added 11 kills of their own.

Trimble coach Shawna Jent knew what her team was up against with the Warriors and was pleased with the way her players responded.

“I wanted that same fire that we had last night. They came in a little hesitant just because they know the level they’re playing against,” Jent said. “It’s kind of hard, but you know, they gave me all they had. That’s all we could do and that’s all we could ask for and we know now what to work on and offseason for next year so that’s our focus.”

Trimble County (12-15) had defeated Owen County in the semi-finals the night before to clinch its first-ever trip to the Eighth Region Tournament and was hoping to add a district title to that resumé.

Despite the nerves, the Raiders hung tough in the first set, leading 13-11 at one point and even after a long Eminence run, trailed only 17-14. But the Warriors took over from that point and rolled to the win.

Sweeney opened the second set with four-straight kills and Eminence (19-6) jumped out to an 8-1 lead before rolling to the victory. Trimble regrouped in the third, leading 3-1 early and was within 13-11 before the Warriors closed out the win.

Sweeney and Ruzanka, who were joined on the all-district team by teammates Julia Dentinger and Jenna Carter, were simply too much for the Raiders to handle. Every time Trimble got close, the Warriors stopped their run.

“Sweeney is a power hitter. She also places her hit wherever we’re not at,” Jent said. “She also hits all over the floor and they have a really good setter; their sets are really short and really tight so it’s really hard to have time to read that offense. We struggled all season long with short setters so we’re going to definitely work on that in the offseason. But I’m super proud of how far they’ve progressed in the last two years.”

Trimble missed only two serves on the night with Gracie Jent going 15-for-15 and Jenna Craig 10-for-11 with three aces. Bailyn Clifford had four kills for the Raiders while Aubree Craig had three kills.

While the Raiders were disappointed with the loss, they couldn’t help but reflect on how far they have come in two seasons, from a team that struggled to win any matches to one that reached the district championship.

“When my seniors were freshmen and sophomores, they won one game each season. We’re at that .500 mark right there and that’s what we want to keep seeing,” Jent said. “This is a big step to be able to reach this far and to bring home a trophy for that trophy case is really exciting. That’s going in our locker room all year to look at all off-season for them to remember why they’re doing what they’re doing because we want the gold trophy next year, not the silver.”

Aubree Craig, Jenna Craig and Clifford were all named to the all-district team. Joining them were: Kylie Dermon, Carroll County. Hallie Russell, Gallatin County, Claire Ramsey and Morgan Brent, Henry County; and Maggie Ponder and Makayla Boothe, Owen County.

Trimble County will face Simon Kenton in the quarterfinals of the Eighth Region Tournament on Tuesday. All games in the tournament will be played at Eminence.

Bengals visit Ravens with AFC North lead on the line

BY NOAH TRISTER

The Cincinnati Bengals have waited a while for a game like this.

There’s no point in downplaying it.

“There’s something to this game,” tight end C.J. Uzomah said. “It is a huge game, and we’re not treating it like a normal game.”

After five straight losing seasons, the Bengals have a chance to move into a tie for first atop the AFC North if they can win at division-leading Baltimore on Sunday.

Yes, the season is less than half over, but for a Cincinnati team with young standouts at quarterback and receiver, this is a chance for the Bengals to see how they measure up against the team with the conference’s best record.

And a team that has dominated the Bengals of late.

The Ravens have won five in a row in this series, and the past three haven’t been close. Baltimore beat Cincinnati 49-13 in their second meeting of 2019, then swept the Bengals last season without allowing a touchdown. The Ravens won 27-3 and 38-3, and in the most recent matchup between the teams, Baltimore rushed for a franchise-record 404 yards.

This season’s Ravens have won five in a row after opening with a loss at Las Vegas. A win this weekend would give coach John Harbaugh’s team a two-game cushion at the top of the division.

A loss, however, would give the Ravens some surprising company in first place.

“There’s nothing more important than division games, especially division games at home,” Harbaugh said. “We understand that.”

This is Baltimore’s first division game of the season. The Bengals already have a win at Pittsburgh.

Much of the attention on Cincinnati is focused on second-year quarterback Joe Burrow and rookie receiver Ja’Marr Chase, both of whom went to LSU. Chase is fourth in the NFL with 553 yards receiving.

“It’s actually been really surprising. He’s really made the NFL look pretty easy,” Ravens cornerback Marlon Humphrey said. “It seems like being that Joe and him played in college together, it’s not really a new relationship. So, it seems like they’re like a fifth-year tandem, that they’ve been doing it for a while.”

Hoosiers embracing Woodson’s more free-flowing offense

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

BLOOMINGTON — When new Indiana coach Mike Woodson arrived on campus last spring, he quickly tossed out the stale rules he thought bogged down the Hoosiers on offense.

He wanted his team playing with confidence, taking open shots and embracing a more free-flowing style.

Players quickly adapted to the refreshing changes and now Woodson is betting fans — some of whom may recognize his foundational principles — will appreciate it, too.

“His style is really just pushing the pace, transition offense, trying to get the ball out, less systematic and more motion-oriented where guys are playing different positions and going different places on the floor,” forward Trayce Jackson-Davis said. “It’s almost like position-less basketball. That was a big adjustment for me.”

Woodson wants to use this season to lay the foundation for putting Indiana back on college basketball’s national map after five consecutive seasons without a winning record in conference play or making the NCAA Tournament.

That’s a stark contrast to the program Woodson first joined in 1976.

Back then, the Hoosiers were the defending national champions, coming off a perfect season. Woodson helped lead Bob Knight’s 1978-79 team to the NIT title, then watched some former teammates claim the 1980-81 NCAA championship after he’d moved on to the NBA.

Woodson insists the Hoosiers can return to the top and already has some key cogs on this season’s roster.

The rebuilding project begins at point guard where Woodson has depth with three experienced players — incumbent starter Rob Phinisee, Pittsburgh transfer Xavier Johnson and highly-touted sophomore Khristian Lander.

All three, Woodson believes, can thrive in this

Rose hands Hanover men HCAC loss

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Hanover men’s soccer suffered its first loss in Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference play Wednesday 1-0 loss to Rose-Hulman at Hanover.

Hanover women’s soccer remained unbeaten on the season but picked up its third tie with a 1-1 draw at Rose-Hulman on Wednesday.

The Panthers, who had not surrendered a goal since a 2-2 draw with Trine on Sept. 5, trailed for just the second time all season when Rose-Hulman’s Kiley McKee scored in the 66th minute to give the Fightin’ Engineers a 1-0 lead.

Bri Matis scored four minutes later for Hanover for the equalizer but neither team could break the tie over the final 20 minutes.

Shots were nearly equal with Hanover leading 15-14 overall and 9-6 on goal. The Panthers’ Maggie Hinegardner stopped five shots in goal.

Hanover, now 11-0-3 overall and 6-0-1 in the HCAC, hosts Anderson today then wraps up the regular season Wednesday at home against Mount St. Joseph.

The Panthers shot a two-round total of 643 (328-315) to place well behind winner Wittenberg, which had a winning score of 581 (297-284).

Dawson Long led the Panthers by placing tied for 12th with a 153 (76-77). Cole Ruttinger tied for 31st with a 159 (82-77), Luke Van Leeuwen tied for 36th with a 164 (84-80), Griffin Reynolds tied for 44th with a 167 (86-81), and Bing Wilson tied for 52nd with a 180 (92-88).

Indiana tries to put season on track vs. No. 5 Ohio State

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Indiana spent the last year pointing to this week's Ohio State game as a measuring stick.

The Hoosiers thought a win over the fifth-ranked Buckeyes would finally cement the program's steady ascension and might even lead to a Big Ten championship game appearance.

Instead, after six games, they're entering Saturday's showdown with four losses and hopes of achieving a more modest milestone — ending the nation's longest active losing streak against one team.

"We're swinging hard," Hoosiers coach Tom Allen said. "Yeah, it's a bit hard, there's no doubt about it. Not what any of us expected or wanted. What are you going to do? That's where you keep on swinging."

The Hoosiers certainly have taken some big blows this season.

All four losses came against teams currently ranked in the top 11 and they still have two more on the card, Saturday against the surging Buckeyes and Nov. 6 at No. 6 Michigan.

The Hoosiers need to win four of their final six to become bowl eligible, leaving no margin for error and they may have to do it without starting quarterback Michael Penix Jr., who is out with an injury to his throwing shoulder. Indiana's secondary has been hit hard by injuries and the high-scoring offense from last season has just one TD against conference foes.

No, it's not how Indiana anticipated this eagerly-awaited season going after it nearly pulled a major upset in Columbus last year.

And after four straight victories, the Buckeyes seem primed to extend their winning streak. Indiana has lost 26 in a row since a tie since a tie in 1990, though the Buckeyes did vacate their 2010 victory because of NCAA sanctions.

Still, coach Ryan Day knows the Hoosiers will be ready to make a statement.

"We've got to go on the road, it's a night game there and they'll have a good atmosphere, kind of like the last times we played on the road with a conference game," Day said. "We're going to get their best shot."

And the Hoosiers aren't about to give in, either.

"We've got to be able to play our best football," Allen said. "We're going to do everything within our power against a team that is very, very talented, has a lot of really good football players, and is very well-coached."

A BETTER PLACE

Freshman quarterback C.J. Stroud threw for 406 yards and five TDs as the Buckeyes scored 66 points in a victory over Maryland before taking their bye, and the Buckeyes have won their last four by an average of 40 points.

That's a dramatically different look from Week 2 when the offense and defense both struggled in 35-28 loss to Oregon.

"I think we're in a lot better place than we were at the beginning of the season," Day said. "We got some rest, so now it's going be a big run."

RECORD CHASE

Peyton Hendershot, one of Indiana's captains, is on the verge of becoming the most prolific tight end in Hoosiers history and he could set two school records in front of Indiana's second sellout crowd this season.

Hendershot needs four catches and 95 yards receiving to surpass Ted Bolser on the school's career list. Bolser had 117 receptions and 1,337 yards from 2010-13. Hendershot also needs five TD catches to break Bolser's all-time record (15).

TREVEYON LIMITED

Ohio State running back TreVeyon Henderson has been one of the nation's most explosive rushers though his stats the last few weeks were hardly gaudy — largely because he sat out most or all of the second halves in the blowouts.

After setting an school single-game record for freshmen runners by logging 277 yards in a 41-20 win over Tulsa on Sept. 18, the true freshman has run for 93, 71 and 102 yards in the last three.

"I think part of that is just the way the games have been shaking in the last couple of weeks," Day said. "It's a long season. We're trying to gradually build, but I think he's in a pretty good place as we head into these last six games."

Buckner leads Colts into showdown vs. his old 49ers team

BY JOSH DUBOW
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

SANTA CLARA, Calif. — Fresh off a trip to the Super Bowl in the 2019 season, the San Francisco 49ers had a difficult decision to make.

With salary cap room tight and star defensive tackle DeForest Buckner headed into the final year of his contract looking for a big pay day, the Niners dealt the cornerstone of their defense to Indianapolis for a first-round pick in a move that has not turned out well so far.

San Francisco (2-3) goes up against Buckner on Sunday night when the Colts (2-4) come to town for a visit for the first time since a trade general manager John Lynch has called one of his most difficult decisions ever.

"It wasn't something we were high-fiving or anything over after it happened," coach Kyle Shanahan. "It came down to, 'Do you want to pay this amount of money to one guy or do you want to keep two of the guys you already have that you will lose and plus add a 13th pick in the draft?'"

"So, it had nothing to do with not valuing Buck or anything like that. ... So, a tough decision we had to make."

The Colts traded the 13th overall pick for Buckner and immediately gave him an $84 million, four-year contract and he became an All-Pro in his first season in Indianapolis.

Buckner said he wanted to stay and was willing to take a little less to remain with the Niners, but it didn't work out.

"It really did teach me a lot about the business side of things. I felt like I did all the right things on and off the field. Obviously I wanted to be there long term," he said. "When you're drafted to an organization, your initial thoughts are, 'I want to be here until I retire,' but unfortunately it didn't shake out that way."

The Niners opted to use a big chunk of the savings on Buckner to retain defensive lineman Arik Armstead with a five-year, $85 million contract. They then used the pick to draft defensive tackle Javon Kinlaw.

Armstead hasn't played up to the level he had in a breakthrough 2019 season and Kinlaw has been slowed by knee injuries the past two years and has been mostly underwhelming.

The Niners haven't quite replaced Buckner.

"He was the heart and soul when he was here," safety Jimmie Ward said. "I wasn't happy about it. But I understand the business side."

REUNION WEEKEND
Buckner won't be the only Indy player having a reunion this weekend.

Colts quarterback Carson Wentz will also get to see 49ers quarterback Trey Lance, another North Dakota State grad. The two developed a friendship before Lance was taken in the first round this year.

"I know him as a person and as a quarterback and as a guy," Wentz said when asked about Lance. "I have a lot of respect for him, great friend over the years getting to talk to him and see his development there in college. I think he's got a bright future. He's in a good system there for his skill set."

Each of the Bison's last three quarterbacks — Lance, Wentz and Los Angeles Chargers backup Easton Stick — are now in the NFL.

Lance is not expected to play because of a knee injury.

QB SHUFFLE

Jimmy Garoppolo should step back in at starting quarterback for the Niners after missing one game before the bye with an injured right calf. Lance started in his place two weeks ago in Arizona but sprained his left knee in that game and will likely miss this week. Garoppolo was able to get healthy and will be back this week.

TURNING IT OVER

Turnovers have played a big part in the Colts' success over the last several years and that hasn't changed this season.

Indy's plus-7 turnover differential is tied for No. 3 in the league, trailing only Buffalo and Arizona. The Colts also have the league's third-longest active streak of consecutive games with a takeaway (seven) and two-time All-Pro linebacker Darious Leonard has four straight games with a takeaway.

"We have a points system on turnovers and he's leading the defense with like seven points," Buckner said. "The other guys on the board all have like one or two points. He's a different cat playing the linebacker position. The ball always finds him or he just finds the ball."

BIG ADMIRER

Colts running back Jonathan Taylor caught the eye of 49ers linebacker Fred Warner a long time ago. When Taylor was a freshman at Wisconsin in 2017, he rushed for 128 yards and a TD against Warner and BYU. The performance left a lasting impression that Warner didn't hesitate when he was asked at the combine who was the best player he faced in college.

"I always said Jonathan Taylor," Warner said. "He's for some reason just always stuck my mind and so got a lot of respect for Jonathan. He's got the breakaway speed. It looks kind of deceptive on tape, but he's got the breakaway speed. He runs the ball hard. He's a really good back."

No. 10 Kentucky looks to veterans, transfers for title run

BY GARY B. GRAVES
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON, Ky. — John Calipari's enthusiasm and optimism about his Kentucky squad comes from having his most experienced Wildcats roster in a while.

Yes, Calipari once again landed a couple of heralded freshman recruits. But they'll be outnumbered by a veteran core comprised of several holdovers and a handful of transfers. All of them will be counted on to help No. 10 Kentucky bounce back from its worst finish in nearly a century.

The Wildcats were 9-16 last season — a year Calipari won't bother reflecting on.

"Last year is a blip," Calipari said on media day. "That's so far behind me, what we went through. I learned from it and you move on."

"What I like about this group, they're competing against each other. Let me say this: Yes, we do have depth."

It starts with sixth-year guard Davion Mintz (11.5 points per game), who returns for an extra season after being the offensive bright spot on a team that struggled to shoot. Juniors Keion Brooks Jr. and Jacob Toppin and sophomore Lance Ware are back in the frontcourt, while redshirt guard Dontaie Allen looks to build off promising flashes as a redshirt freshman.

They welcome a seasoned group of newcomers, including several with Power 5 resumes.

Former West Virginia forward Oscar Tshiebwe (8.5 points, 7.8 rebounds) is eligible after transferring at midseason from Morgantown. The transfer portal also yielded guards CJ Fredrick (Iowa), Kellan Grady (Davidson) and Sahvir Wheeler (Georgia).

Calipari as usual warned of potential early struggles with another roster makeover, though the Hall of Fame coach is encouraged by crisp preseason workouts.

The pandemic limited practices and interaction last season and the lack of cohesion showed as Kentucky missed the NCAA Tournament for the first time since 2013. This year's outlook is much brighter.

"It has been significant," Mintz said of the transfers' impact. "Having older guys come in, just the maturity level, the way we're able to have a feel for each other at an early stage like this is going to (make) a difference for the season."

"You just have guys that have seen different things and that is helping us a lot."

LOADED BACKCOURT

Calipari hints at potentially playing four guards this season, all of whom can run the point and shoot. The 5-foot-9 Wheeler in particular boasts impressive credentials, setting a Georgia single-season record with 193 assists and leading the Southeastern Conference with 7.4 assists per game. He also averaged 14 points per contest.

Grady, 6-5, scored 2,000 points at Davidson and was an All-Atlantic 10 Conference first team selection. Mintz led Kentucky with 56 3-pointers on 38% shooting, more than half coming in the final eight games.

READY TO GO

Oscar Tshiebwe might be the most eager Wildcat after being a spectator for the second half of Kentucky's disappointing spring. The 6-foot-9 Congo native has bulked up to 255 pounds, and practicing against 7-footer Olivier Sarr familiarized him with Calipari's expectations of post players asserting themselves.

"He puts you in a situation where you might be uncomfortable during practice, but it's to make you comfortable with it," Tshiebwe said. "I'm getting more comfortable now, and I'm so excited to get through the season to show people the stuff I've been working for."

YOUNG TALENT

Though smaller than previous classes, Kentucky's newest freshmen are still expected to make an immediate impact. Guard TyTy Washington and All-America forward Daimion Collins were rated five-star prospects. Forward Bryce Hopkins was a four-star recruit and consensus top-50 prospect.

STAFF CHANGES

Calipari brought back a familiar face in associate coach Orlando Antigua, a Kentucky assistant from 2009-14 before becoming head coach at South Florida. Also new to the bench are Ronald "Chin" Coleman, who came with Antigua from Illinois. Calipari's son, Brad, and ex-Wildcat Riley Welch are graduate assistants. Former assistant Tony Barbee left in the offseason to become head coach at Central Michigan.

KEY GAMES

Kentucky opens on Nov. 9 against No. 9 Duke in the Champions Classic in New York's Madison Square Garden. The non-conference docket includes consecutive games against Notre Dame (Dec. 11), Ohio State (Dec. 18) with a home meeting against rival Louisville on Dec. 22. The Wildcats open SEC play against Missouri on Dec. 29 and will visit fellow heavyweight Kansas a month later in the Big 12/SEC Challenge.

No. 7 Boilermakers using NCAA Tourney loss as motivation

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Purdue coach Matt Painter understands how the lessons from a surprisingly short NCAA Tournament appearance can impact a team.

He watched Virginia use the motivation to fuel its 2019 national championship run, and five years ago Painter's own team rebounded from a first-round exit to win the Big Ten regular-season title.

Now, Painter believes the seventh-ranked Boilermakers can do it again — 7 1/2 months after falling to North Texas in the first round.

"What we really talked about was learning from that and being better, even in a better position in next year's NCAA Tournament, hopefully," Painter said. "We've really tried to magnify some of the things we struggled with in that game, and hopefully that can make us a better team and a better program."

Purdue doesn't have many glaring holes after finishing fourth in the Big Ten's COVID-19 shortened season..

All-conference forward Trevion Williams returns for his fourth year after averaging 15.5 points and 9.1 rebounds. He is joined by experienced guards Sasha Stefanovic, Eric Hunter Jr. and Isaiah Thompson.

The Boilermakers also have an impressive sophomore class featuring play-making guard Jaden Ivey, 7-foot-4 Zach Edey and forward Mason Gillis, with more help from a pair of tall freshmen forwards — reigning IndyStar Mr. Basketball Award winner Caleb Furst and runner-up Trey Kaufman-Renn.

It's a daunting lineup filled with size, versatility, 3-point shooters and potentially difficult mismatches — virtually anything a coach would want. Naturally, they don't lack confidence, either.

"It's a great feeling to have these expectations put on you. I think we've earned that right," Stefanovic said. "We have a lot of talent and a lot of great players on our team that can help us win a lot of games. With that being said, we obviously haven't won a game yet."

Painter knows that unless they fix the flaws North Texas exposed in March, the final chapter may not change much, either. But after watching all the tape and spending an offseason fine-tuning their skills, the Boilermakers believe things will be different next spring.

"You have to earn everything you're given," Stefanovic said. "We're really excited to have that opportunity to potentially win a Big Ten title and we're going to do everything we can to try to get to that level."

GOING BIG

Painter has relied on a double dose of going big in recent years and this season will be no different with the

6 C-USA schools leaving for American Athletic

BY RALPH D. RUSSO
AP COLLEGE FOOTBALL WRITER

Major college football is settling into a strange period with lame duck memberships and frayed allegiances that could last another season or even two as conferences sort out the latest shifts and turns of realignment.

The American Athletic Conference on Thursday became the latest to act in the trickle down effect from Texas and Oklahoma's announced move to the Southeastern Conference.

The American is adding UAB, UTSA, Rice, North Texas, Charlotte and Florida Atlantic to replace three schools that are leaving for the Big 12 Conference — eventually.

"I think they will definitely take great advantage of the exposure and the platforms that are going to be provided by this conference," AAC Commissioner Mike Aresco said. "So we look forward, down the road, and we're not certain when they're going to come in yet. That's still to be decided."

Pinning down an ETA for the AAC's new additions is complicated because the conference doesn't realistically have room for the newcomers until the outgoing schools have left.

Those within the AAC believe 2023 is a realistic target for the transition to a 14-team conference after swiping six schools from Conference USA.

But it all starts with Texas and Oklahoma. The Longhorns and Sooners are contractually obligated to the Big 12 until July 2025. The SEC has made it clear that while it is looking forward to having Texas and OU on board, the league is also fine with waiting until then.

Breaking the contract would cost Texas and Oklahoma tens of millions of dollars in exit fees paid to the Big 12, but it is understood that everybody involved would benefit from not stringing out this broken relationship for three more seasons.

The Big 12, after all, already has replacements lined up. The conference in September announced BYU and three AAC powers, Cincinnati, Houston and UCF, would be joining — eventually.

BYU, an independent in football with other sports in the West Coast Conference, is preparing to join the Big 12 in 2023. The three American schools are required to give the conference 27 months' notice and pay $10 million exit fees. The Big 12 said it expected them to join by no later than summer of 2024. And it left the door open to add more schools down the road.

"We're living in a very fast-changing athletic environment, and we will be at 14 for a while, we will drop back to 12, and as there are targets of opportunity or as there are situations that dictate that we change composition, we'll be prepared to do those things," Big 12 Commissioner Bob Bowlsby said in September.

Aresco conceded growing to 14 was a way for a conference that has become a feeder league for the Power Five to be prepared for future poaching.

"We decided that there was strength in numbers," Aresco said. "We also looked around and said you know there are some schools that we might be interested in later on, why not, you know, think about taking them now?"

C-USA and the Sun Belt are next up in realignment. With only eight remaining members, Conference USA needs to both protect its assets and add on. A request for comment from Conference USA Commissioner Judy MacLeod was not immediately returned.

The Sun Belt continues to publicly say it will explore its options, but Commissioner Keith Gill told AP the conference is feeling no pressure to act now that the American has made its move.

"There is no timetable," Gill said.

He declined to comment on reports the 10-football member Sun Belt is eyeing some of C-USA's remaining schools such as Southern Mississippi, Marshall and Old Dominion along with FCS powerhouse James Madison.

Ball scores 31 points to rally Hornets past Pacers, 123-122

BY ELI PACHECO
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — LaMelo Ball scored 31 points, hitting seven 3-pointers, and the Charlotte Hornets used a 24-0 third period run to battle back and beat the Indiana Pacers 123-122 on Wednesday night.

Indiana led 122-121 on Torrey Craig's foul shots with 12.7 left. P.J. Washington made two free throws with 4.6 seconds left before Domantas Sabonis missed from 11 feet to seal the Hornets' win.

The run ignited a home crowd of 15,521 that had little to cheer for at that point.

"The building had been pretty dead in the first half," Pacers coach Rick Carlisle said. "A lot of that was we were playing well. But they got going and the energy in the building got going, and when that happens, crazy things happen in this league."

Ball scored 12 points in the third-period run and finished with nine rebounds and seven assists. Gordon Hayward scored 27 for Charlotte, which got 14 each from newcomers Kelly Oubre Jr. and Ish Smith. Miles Bridges had 13 and Cody Martin 10 for the Hornets, who played without last year's leading scorer Terry Rozier.

Borrego said pregame that Rozier would test his sprained left ankle and undergo tests before the team would determine his status. He was ruled out shortly before tipoff.

Sabonis scored 33 points with 15 rebounds, Malcolm Brogdon had 28, and Chris Duarte chipped in with 27 for Indiana, which had a 21-point lead early in the second half. Justin Holiday added 11 for the Pacers.

Both teams had to overcome double-digit leads in the second half to set up a tense finish.

Indiana led the entire first half and appeared set for a second straight runaway victory in the series. In May, the Pacers' 20-7 opening run led to a 144-117 rout in a play-in game.

Wednesday, as Indiana pushed its lead past 20 to start the second half, Charlotte began its monstrous run with 8:48 to play in the third. Sabonis' basket gave Indiana an 84-63 lead. Ball took over from there, scoring 12 of Charlotte's 24 consecutive points, including two 3-pointers and a dunk.

Smith's basket gave Charlotte its first double-digit lead at 106-96. During the 24-0 Charlotte run, Indiana shot 0-for-8 and committed five turnovers over a 5 1/2-minute span. The Hornets outscored Indiana 33-13 in the period.

"We picked up the ball and made them feel us all third quarter," Hornets coach James Borrego said.

Brogdon's 3-pointer pushed the Pacers ahead 110-109 and wiped out a 10-point deficit. Neither team could forge a lead of more than five the rest of the way.

HONORING RICK

The team held a moment of silence for Charlotte Observer writer Rick Bonnell, who died unexpectedly in June. The Hornets established a scholarship in Bonnell's name. "We miss him," Borrego said pregame. "He was a dear friend and someone that I had a lot of respect for."

FIGURING OUT ROTATIONS

Carlisle said he had an idea for the team's rotation with second-unit players mixed in. He's dealing with a roster turnover reminiscent of his days with the Mavericks, just after Dallas won an NBA championship, in 2011.

"I hope it is going to be effective," he said. The first game of the season, new situation ... but that is the plan."

BENGALS

The Bengals (4-2) have had success on the other side of the ball as well. Cincinnati has not allowed more than 25 points in a game this season. The Ravens have eclipsed that mark four times, including last weekend in a 34-6 rout of the Chargers that gave Baltimore a marquee win over another AFC team that was off to a good start.

‘THE RIGHT TRAJECTORY’

The Bengals have already equaled their win total for all of last season. They finished 4-11-1 in 2020 after slogging to a 2-14 record in coach Zac Taylor’s first year in 2019.

Taylor said the overall improvement is evident everywhere. “We’re playing well on the road the last two weeks,” he said. “We’ve responded well to adversity so far. And so again, those are all things that are going to serve us well the rest of the season. You know, I’m always going to sit here and say there’s things we can improve, but I think our guys are on the right trajectory right now, and that’s encouraging to see.”

HEALTH UPDATE

Injuries have been a constant backdrop for the Ravens, ever since they lost running backs J.K. Dobbins and Gus Edwards before the season even began. This week, they put offensive line-man Ronnie Stanley (ankle) on injured reserve. He hadn’t played since the opener. Receiver Sammy Watkins (thigh) missed last weekend’s game, and running back Latavius Murray hurt his ankle.

A BETTER BURROW

Taylor said Burrow is better than he was when he was beaten 27-3 by the Ravens in Week 5 last season. The rookie threw an interception and was sacked seven times by Baltimore. “I think Joe has grown tremendously,” Taylor said. “He’s been exposed to a lot more defenses over the course of the year, just having played and watched more tape over this last season.”

Burrow is completing more than 70% of his passes and has at least two touchdown passes in each of the Bengals’ first six games.

NEVER BEFORE

The Ravens are 5-1 for the fourth time in franchise history, but they’ve never started 6-1. Baltimore was 5-1 as recently as last season, then dropped four of its next five games.

BIG TARGET

With Watkins and receiver Rashod Bateman both having missed time, the Ravens have leaned heavily on tight end Mark Andrews. The 6-foot-5 Andrews has 468 yards receiving, tied with Kansas City’s Travis Kelce for the top mark among NFL tight ends.

modernized offense that gives players freedom to do more. It was enough to convince Jackson-Davis to return for his junior season, and when Woodson told forward Race Thompson he could do more this season, Thompson also opted to come back. “He said, ‘I want you to play basketball,’ ” Thompson said. “He said, ‘If you show me you can do this, I’m going to let you do it’ and that was something that was exciting to me.” The result: Woodson said he saw a vastly different Thompson during a summer trip to the Bahamas than the one he’d heard about. Woodson wants his team to follow Thompson’s lead by disproving the doubters. “I’ve never been a coach that kind of locks a guy in a box and says, ‘Hey, you stay in the box, this is the only area you can play in,’ ” Woodson said. “I think everybody that’s been in uniform so far has had the freedom to play.”
